

FREE EMERGENCY CONTINUITY WORKBOOK

Florida Homeschool Hurricane and Emergency Learning Continuity Plan

A family-centered workbook for protecting people, records, devices, learning routines, and scholarship or program documentation before and after a Florida emergency.

Inside this resource

- ☐ Alerts, shelter, evacuation, and communication plan
- ☐ Medication, disability, pet, and transportation needs
- ☐ Education-record and device backup map
- ☐ Offline learning and provider-continuity plan
- ☐ Recovery log and official source desk

Created by a homeschool parent. Built for Florida families.

Updated October 2026

Start with the household emergency plan

Learning can pause. Safety, medical needs, communication, shelter, evacuation, and reunification come first. Use official local alerts and instructions during an active emergency.

Planning fact	Current answer	Official source/contact	Verified date
County and evacuation zone
Alert system enrolled
Shelter plan
Evacuation route
Family meeting place
Out-of-area contact
Transportation plan
Pet plan

Florida starting point

Florida's Division of Emergency Management says every household should decide how it will receive alerts, shelter, evacuate, and communicate, then practice the plan. Follow local emergency-management directions when conditions change.

PLAN FOR EACH PERSON

Medical, disability, age, and access needs

Person	Daily need	Supply/equipment	Backup helper	Plan location

- ☐ List medications, prescriptions, allergies, mobility, sensory, communication, and behavioral supports.
- ☐ Plan power, charging, refrigeration, batteries, and replacement supplies for essential equipment.
- ☐ Confirm transportation and shelter accessibility directly with the responsible local authority.
- ☐ Give children an age-appropriate contact and reunification plan without making them responsible for adult decisions.
- ☐ Store emergency contacts in paper form as well as on devices.

Back up records before the storm

Record	Paper location	Digital backup	Access owner	Last updated
Notice/status confirmation
Portfolio index and samples
Annual evaluation/assessment
Transcript/course records
PEP learning plan and receipts
Private-school records
Dual-enrollment/provider records
Identity/health documents

Privacy matters

Use protected storage for identity, health, scholarship, and student records. A backup that no trusted adult can access during an emergency is not a complete continuity plan.

Keep learning gentle and portable

Area	Offline option	Materials packed	Evidence worth saving
Read-aloud and independent reading
Math review and games
Writing/journaling
Science and weather observation
Florida history/geography
Art/music/making
Movement and practical life

Keep expectations humane

During evacuation, displacement, power loss, or recovery, use short routines only when they support the family. Safety, sleep, food, connection, and recovery take priority.

Devices, connectivity, and account access

Tool/account	Owner	Backup/charger	Offline access	Recovery method
Primary learning device
Phone/hotspot
Cloud record storage
Curriculum platform
Email
Scholarship/EMA account
College/provider portal
Password manager

Security caution

Do not put passwords, recovery codes, Social Security numbers, or full student identifiers on this worksheet. Record only where the protected information is stored.

Document changes without guessing

Date	Organization/person	Closure or change	Action promised	Confirmation saved

- ☐ Check district, scholarship, private-school, provider, college, testing, and activity notices separately.
- ☐ Ask for written extensions, cancellations, refunds, rescheduling, or documentation rules when needed.
- ☐ Photograph damaged learning materials or equipment before disposal when a reimbursement or claim may apply.
- ☐ Rebuild the portfolio and permanent-record backup from the most recent protected copy.
- ☐ Write the next three family actions; do not try to restart every system at once.
